MiaoSense

BRIEF PROFILE

A closer look at your own cat's body language

MiaoSense is an Android app for cat owners. The smartphone camera is pointed at the cat, and the app combines facial expression, posture and movement into an AI-based estimate of the cat's mood, live in the camera image.

How it works

A coloured frame appears around the cat, with the estimated mood above it, for example relaxed, alert, anxious or fearful, and how confident the app is. A history places earlier observations next to today's.

The analysis stays on the device

All AI models are part of the app itself and run on the phone's processor. No photos, no audio and no analysis results are transferred to a cloud, which is why the analysis on the device also works without an internet connection. No MiaoSense account is needed. Data the app stores on the device can be deleted directly in its settings.

An estimate, not a diagnosis

MiaoSense describes what is visible and does not assess it medically. The output is a probability-based estimate of mood, not a statement about the animal's health. Anyone worried about their cat should see a vet.

Free to try, pay once

Three analyses, one cat profile and the history of the last seven days are free. The full version, MiaoSense Pro, is a one-time purchase of €7.99 in every EU country that uses the euro, incl. VAT; elsewhere a price in local currency applies, which Google Play shows before purchase. There is no subscription. Pro unlocks unlimited analyses, several cat profiles with their own history, an activity heatmap, a weekly comparison and MiaoWatch (remote cameras) for your own network cameras.
